Framing the Message of Disaster Resilience

The road to Planning to Turn the Tide

Jim Schwab, FAICP

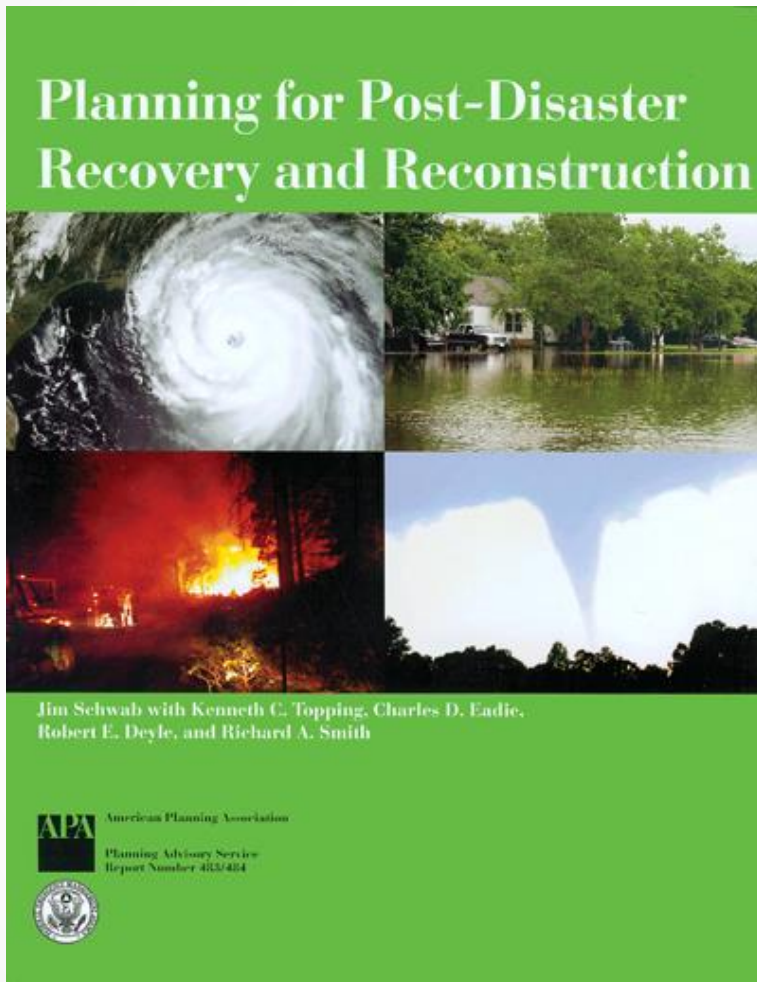

Immediate Past Chair, APA Hazard Mitigation and Disaster Recovery Planning Division

Part 1: Developing a Hazards Planning Subfield through APA

- Framing the message on disaster recovery planning (1993-1998)
- Framing the message on hazard mitigation planning (2007-2010)
- Framing the message on disaster recovery planning (2010-2014)
- Developing the message on climate change and infrastructure (2016-2020)

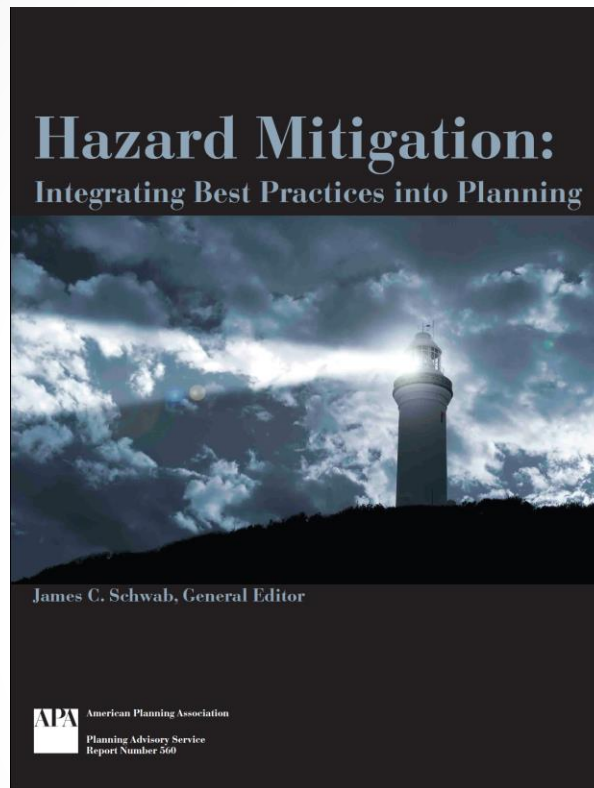

1992: APA and FEMA agree to create new guide on post-disaster recovery

1993: Work begins on the now famous "Green Book" on recovery planning

1998: Publication of Planning for Post-Disaster Recovery and Reconstruction

Post-1998: PAS Report 483/484 becomes go-to resource for planners working on post-disaster recovery

2000: Congress
passes Disaster
Mitigation Act
2005: Hurricane Katrina

2005: APA assists New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina

2007: APA reaches agreement with FEMA on need for guidance for planners on hazard mitigation planning

2010: APA completes PAS Report on Hazard Mitigation

October 2012:
Hurricane Sandy
April 2013: APA offers recovery training in
New York/New Jersey

2009-2010: APA pitches FEMA on overhauling original post-disaster report 2010: Work begins on major new report to include online resources

2013: APA project team becomes instructional team for post-Sandy recovery training

2014: APA releases PAS Report and ancillary online products

- Vision of Resilient Community
- Anticipating Disruption
- Expectations versus Reality
- Federal Framework for Recovery
- Goals and Policies (including housing)
- Planning Process
- Plan Implementation
- Creating Resilient Communities

Inside PAS 576

Major Accomplishment:

Report laid out a coherent theory for distinguishing the functions of recovery planning pre-disaster versus post-disaster

Climate Change and Infrastructure

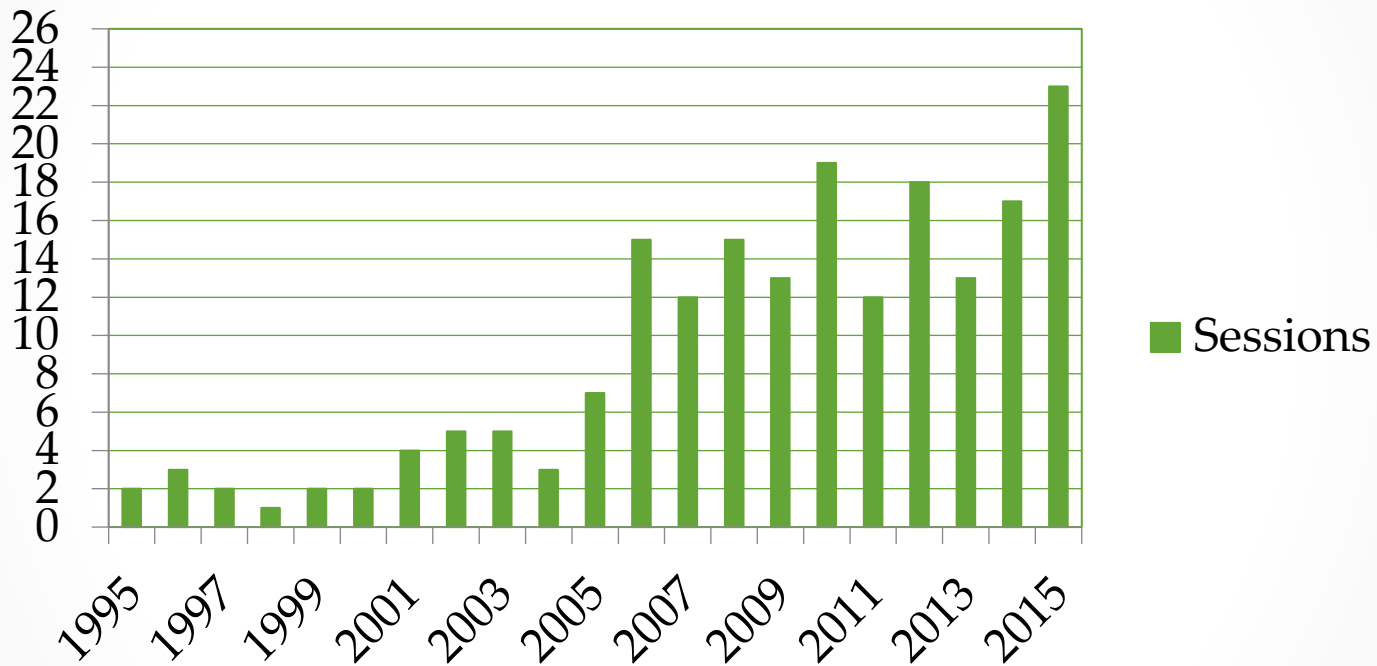

Two major projects funded by NOAA from 2016 forward explore:

- Climate as a factor in capital improvements, or infrastructure, planning
- Integration of climate change into local comprehensive planning in the Great Lakes region

APA NPC: Climate Change and Hazard Session Attendance Totals Per Year

NPC: Number of Climate Change and Hazard Session Totals Per Year

Part 2:

Jim Schwab's "alleged retirement"

Sequence leading to Planning to Turn the Tide

- Jim's retirement from APA as of June 1, 2017
- Sets up Jim Schwab Consulting in September 2017
- Elected chair-elect of APA Hazard Mitigation and Disaster Recovery Planning Division in Fall 2017
- Discussions with David Taylor, Brecksville (OH) High School classmate at 50-year class reunion in summer 2018
- Follow-up discussions into 2019 about possible film project focused on role of planners in addressing disasters
- Initial fundraising begins in late 2019
- Jim takes over as HMDR chair in January 2020
- Pandemic shuts down project in March 2020
- Project resumes in Fall 2021 as pandemic concerns recede
 - Advisory committee formed
 - Fundraising resumes
 - Volunteer teams in development
- Spring 2021: Filming begins
